National Rubber New Aerial Buys Leetonia Crescent Plant

Former Rockwell Co. Branch Was Closed After Long Strike

The Rockwell Mfg. Co.'s Crescent plant in Leetonia will become a part of the Columbiana operation of the National Rubber Machinery Co. and will be denoted as its plant number two. Allen Heston, vice president of National Rubber Co., said today. The two plants are only three miles apart.

Announcement of the purchase of the Rockwell plant was made today by the National Rubber firm, which according to Heston, is expanding its overall program.

Provide Additional Space

The acquisition of the Leetonia plant will give the company the additional floor space needed for various operations, Heston said, although he did not specify what type of work would go on at the Leetonia plant.

The plant at Leetonia was abandoned by the Rockwell Co. in 1953 following a prolonged employe

Several years ago National Rubber centered all its pattern work and much of its foundry work at the Columbiana plant where over 450 persons are employed. Other plants are situated at Akron and Clifton, N.J.

Firm Formed in 1928

The company, an engineering firm which supplies rubber and plastic processing machinery to various industries, was formed in 1928 through a merger of the Banner Machine Co. of Columbiana, De Mattia Brothers Inc. of Clifton, N.J., Akron Rubber Mold and Machine Co., and the Kuhlke Madivision in Columbiana continued to concentrate its operations on production of machinery for tire build-

Today the principal products of the company are tire building machines, bias cutters, slitters, tube splicers, vacuum boxes, tube molds, tread cutters, air bag extractors, band building, bead machines, laboratory experiment al equipment, wrapping machines, reeling and coiling machines, tube inserting machines, conveyors, stock turret and extruders.

Want Changes In Mediation Panel Proposal

Company Okays Plan; Carey Says IUE Board Decision.Unanimous

WASHINGTON UN - The union turned down a government proposed plan for settlement of the Westinghouse strike, now in its 144th day.

James B. Carey, president of the International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE), said the decision by the 75-member conference board. of the union was unanimous. Carey told a news conference the union's action was "not to be considered a rejection, nor could it be considered an acceptance - it might be described that the plan so far is unacceptable."

Carey said he expected to meet today with Federal Mediation Service Director Joseph Finnegan to discuss what steps might be taken toward further negotiations with the Westinghouse Electric

Campaign 'Vigor'

One result of the Eisenhower decision last week looms larger as thoughts turn to the kind of campaign the President says he will wage. His reference to "mass communication" means, principally, television.

The role of newspapers since the advent of electronics has been chiefly to report what campaigners do and say in their appearances before television cameras and radio microphones.

In 1948 when President Truman staged his barnstorming expedition, his speeches from the back platform of his campaign train scarecely lent themselves to newspaper reporting at all; they were purely local and so completely "in the vernacular" that they contained no general

Whether it was their cumulative effect that caused the upset in 1948, or whether the upset was caused by Thomas E. Dewey's failure to command a following is a moot point in politics.

In either event, the wide distribution of television sets now makes it a certainty that oldfashioned barnstorming is on the defensive.

The question is whether the same campaign "vigor" can be attained by means of mass communication as used to be attaned by peripatetic candidate making innumerable appearances in person before large and small audiences from coast to coast.

Republican campaign planners think it can be. Their judgment is being questioned not only by their opposite numbers in the Democratic party, who are counting on the sheer physical vigor of their yet undesignated candidate to offset Eisenhower's prestige, but by Republicans like Sen. Knowland, who are voicing misgivings about the kind of campaign Eisenhower has declared he would have waged even if he had never had a heart attack. They, too, question the "vigor" of electronic campaigning.

In 1956 it will be proved once and for all whether or not television has transformed presidential campaigning, as many claim it was destined to do when it was still in the experimental stage. Even before television, Franklin Roosevelt had demonstrated the potentialities of electronics with his mastery of radio "fireside chats."

Keeping Step With Progress

John H. Lamneck's point of view on cameras and microphones in court rooms, as expressed last Friday in a special statement, puts the problem in its proper perspective.

The former Ohio Supreme Court justice denies the stiff-necked attitude that cameras and microphones should be barred entirely. He declares courts have no right to close their doors The only thing they have any right to bar is disturbance or distraction not in keeping with proper decorum, such as indiscriminate flashing of light bulbs when the court is actually in session. This, he believes, is entirely a matter for the trial judge to decide - not something to be dealt with by a rigid rule, such as the American Bar Association's Canon 35. But it is when he says that courts must keep step with progress that Judge Lammevk hits the nail squarely. Reporters are allowed in court rooms because no distraction is caused' by the job they do. Cameras are barred because their use is distracting. But progress already has produced a camera and a type of film that require no flash bulbs to get a clear

The day is at hand when there is no more excuse for barring photographers from court rooms than for barring reporters, whose right to be there rarely has been questioned-and never questioned successfully. The courts belong to the sovereign people, not to the American Bar Association.

Ohio's Great Discovery

It is our unstudied opinion that Ohio is on the verge of a great discovery about automobile

Instead of worrying about making license plates that will not deteriorate so fast, it should concentrate on making plates that will dissolve entirely in 12 months, plus a few days for good

It came so close to this goal with the plates we are about to replace that a little more effort should do the trick.

There would be nothing to replace each March. If the rusted bolts would dissolve, too, that would be perfect.

Then if the state would devise a way to stagger the distribution of plates by making them renewable at different times during the year, that would be better.

If it went one step further and distributed license plates by mail from a central point, upon receipt of the renewal fee, that would be heavenly. But that may be hoping for too much. For the present, we will settle for a dissolving plate. The wisp of rust our car is sporting fore and aft right now didn't quite dissolve in 12 months-but it came close.

Interesting lessons in advertising for all newspaper readers.

It doesn't have to be big, and it doesn't have to be white, but if nobody wants it, it's a "white elephant".

In order to vindicate this friendly and entertaining beast with a reputation for having a good memory, it should be pointed out that his name is used in vain when he is associated with something that nobody wants, because in fact there is no such thing as something that nobody wants.

Proof of this statement can be found in the number of so-called "white elephants" which are sold every day when they are advertised in the News Classified Ads. Just because you don't want it or need it desn't mean that it is valueless to everyone. Your white elephants (and all the other colors too) can be converted to cash, quickly and at low cost, if you advertise them in a Classified Ad.

You can hire the worlds best white elephant salesman by calling ED 2-4601 and placing a News Classified Ad.

After the soup there was a choice of all white meat chicken salad with capers and curried stuffed ggs, or fruit salad including fresh strawberries, and French rolls with weet butter. Dessert was baked Alaska and hot tea.

The unique feature of this green ea soup is that it is made in the ld-fashioned way, except that it is ione on an assembly-lined scale. The dried split peas are soaked, then cooked in glass-lined kettles. Only whole spices are used, being added early in the cooking process. After simmering the proper length of time, the mixture is pureed and smoke flavoring added. Then the water is removed by a special process and the soup mix is packaged. To make at home, empty the package into cold water, heat, stirring occasionally, until it boils, cover and simmer for 3 minutes. Green Pea Soup, Spinach

In saucepan, saute ¼ cup chopped onion in 2 tablespoons bacon fat or butter. Pour in 3 cups cold water, stir in 1 package pea soup mix and ¼ cup chopped spinach. look according to package direc-
